Swimming in synch

In splashing unison, members of a synchronized swimming squad practice their moves. Thirty girls have been practicing for more than two weeks in preparation for water shows Tuesday at the Holiday Inn, Twin Falls, and Wednesday in Ellettsburg. This marks the 17th year Sandy Tegen has produced the free water show. This year, six routines will be performed by three groups.

CSI receives grant to pursue business center

By BART JANSEN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho received a $740,000 federal grant to pursue its Southern Idaho Development Center, officials announced Friday.

The grant from the Economic Development Agency will complement $300,000 already appropriated by the state legislature to construct the new campus building for incubating businesses in Magic Valley.

"I think it really kicks it off at this point," said Mike Glenn, assistant to the president at CSI.

The announcement becomes a third gem to crown CSI's efforts coordinating funding for its projects. In addition to more than $1 million for the Southern Idaho Development Agency — merely a flicker in somebody's eye this time a year ago — the Legislature spent nearly $1 million on a telecommunications project to link CSI with universities statewide for courses.

The EDA grant was announced jointly by Republican Sens. James McClure and Steve Symms.

"This is an investment in the future of Idaho and the Magic Valley," McClure said. "If estimates are correct, the center means 350 jobs a year. That's jobs created or jobs that would have been lost without the center."

The building will stand north of the gym and the initial 12,000.

Jobs, unemployment rate rise during July

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Unemployment edged up slightly to 5.4 percent in July, the government reported Friday, but analysts said the surprising creation of 283,000 new jobs shows the economy is robust enough to offset any stunted growth from the drought.

The unemployment rate last month was one-tenth of a percentage point from the 14-year low of 5.3 percent in June. A total of 120,000 more Americans — 80 percent of them teenagers — found themselves out of work, the Labor Department said.

The department's nationwide survey of 55,800 households, from which the jobless rate is calculated, showed a gain of only 41,000 job holders in July.

A separate survey of more than 300,000 business and government payrolls turned up 283,000 new jobs last month, 150,000 of them in retailing and manufacturing alone.

Area record — B1

Most private analysts had anticipated new payroll growth of only 150,000 to 200,000 in July, usually a slow month in the labor market.

Revised numbers for June showed much stronger job creation then as well. Originally June payroll growth was put at 346,000, but based on new data, the government said Friday it was actually 532,000.

The drought plaguing the Farm Belt shaved off half a percentage point from the economy's annual growth rate from April through June.

Private college costs to top $20,000 mark

The Associated Press

NEW-YORK — Average college costs will climb 7 percent this fall and a few private colleges will top the $20,000-a-year mark for the first time, according to a survey released Friday by the College Board.

Tuition thus continues to rise faster than the nation's overall inflation rate for the eighth consecutive year.

The board's annual survey of college costs took pains to point out, however, that only a handful of private colleges were charging sky-high fees, and over half the nation's students are sharing $24 billion in aid.

"Students and their families should not be discouraged by these (tuition) increases," said College Board President Donald Stewart.

But critics in the Reagan administration and even a handful of college presidents said this fall's continued steep increases were further proof that colleges refuse to do anything about bloated bureaucracies and other waste on many campuses.

Average "fixed charges" at private, four-year institutions — tuition, fees, room and board — will hit $11,330 for 1988-89, up 9 percent from last fall, the board estimated in its annual survey of college costs.

Adding $1,600, which the board estimates the average student spends on incidentals like books, supplies and transportation, the total budget for resident four-year private school students will reach nearly $13,000.

Average fixed costs at four-year public institutions will increase 5 percent to $4,445 for in-state students — or just over $6,000 including incidental expenses.

At two-year private schools, tuition, fees, room and board will average $7,627, up 7 percent. Average tuition and fees at public two-year institutions are increasing 4 percent to $767. The board said the sample of such schools charging room and board was too small to compile an average.

A year at Bennington, perennially the nation's most expensive, will cost the average student approximately $20,590, counting estimated incidental expenses. Sarah Lawrence College ranks second at an estimated $20,186, followed by Brandeis University, $20,186, and Barnard College, $20,150.

Other schools where student expenses will hover near the $20,000-a-year mark include Tufts University, University of Chicago, Harvard and Rensselaer, Dartmouth College, Boston University and New York University.

Few of the nation's other 3,400 colleges and universities charge anywhere near such stratospheric amounts. Median tuitions and fees charged at four-year private colleges for 1988-89 will be $6,780, and just $1,440 for four-year public institutions, according to the survey.

Calls inundate agency

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Social Security Administration was inundated with calls Friday for its new, personalized benefit estimates, and the agency's chief said she was adding 100 phone lines to handle the demand.

Many callers were getting busy signals when they dialed the toll-free number — 1-800-937-2000 — to request copies of the application form, SSA-7004.

"The phones are ringing off the hook, but we're getting there," Social Security Commissioner Doris W. Hardy said in a telephone interview from her Baltimore headquarters.

The toll-free number started with 200 phone lines capable of handling a total of 10,000 calls an hour.

Hardy said she was adding 100 extra lines to expand unit capacity to 15,000 calls an hour.

Hardy announced Thursday that the agency was offering free, individualized estimates of future benefits to workers of all ages.

The toll-free number operates 24 hours a day. Those who get through hear a recording asking them to spell their name and address for a tape machine.

The agency's 1,400 district offices also have been stocked with copies of the application form for the Personal Earnings and Benefit Estimate Statement.

People can also call those local offices, "or stop by on their way to work," Hardy suggested.

It's Brady in for Baker

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III announced Friday he is resigning to take over George Bush's presidential election campaign, telling President Reagan he wanted to help "ensure the survival of your legacy."

Reagan called Baker "a friend whom I will miss" and announced that he was nominating Wall Street investment banker Nicholas F. Brady to be Baker's successor at Treasury.

Brady's appointment is subject to Senate confirmation, as Jim Baker would say, "It's a deal" and Reagan expressed confidence he would win it easily.

Brady, 68, is chairman of Dillon, Read & Co., a Wall Street investment house. He served as an appointed senator from New Jersey for eight months in 1982 following the Abscon conviction of Sen. Harrison Williams.

He also chaired a presidential commission named to look into the stock market crash last October.

Referring to months of speculation about Baker's move, Reagan began his statement to reporters by exclaiming: "Well, it's a done deal."

Violence over drug plots in forests could worsen

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Violence between operators of "illegal" marijuana plantations on national forest land could escalate unless federal efforts to stamp out the drug cultivation succeed, the U.S. Forest Service said Friday.

A report by the Agriculture Department agency said there were growing indications that a few outside brokers, who finance the operations and subcontract the actual cultivation of marijuana, are gaining the upper hand, especially in national forests in Oregon and California.

The brokers do not come in physical contact with the sites or the marijuana, the report said. This is apparently being done to reduce exposure and risk of being apprehended and prosecuted.

It also said there are indications that competing grower organizations are raiding each others' plots in an effort to gain control over cultivation activity in prime growing areas.

The report makes clear that the key reason why it's so hard to get this scourge out of the forests is that a tough, sophisticated criminal element runs many of these marijuana fields, said Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore., who had requested the report and released it at a news conference.

Andrus administration analysts increase surplus figures

The Associated Press

BOISE — The economic growth that generated a multimillion-dollar state revenue surplus at the end of the 1988 budget year in June has prompted cautious Andrus administration analysts to dramatically reassess their revenue projections for the present year.

The result was an additional $12 million revenue cushion over projected spending this year, creating the possibility that the state could finance a 1990 budget as much as $28 million more than will be spent this year without a tax increase of any kind.

"It's just economic improvement," Budget Director Charles Moss said Friday.

Based on the economic developments of the past five months that pushed 1988 revenues $14.3 million beyond expenditures, the Division of Financial Management increased its estimate of tax receipts for the current year to $698 million.

That was $22.4 million higher than the estimate originally made by the administration and nearly $16 million higher than the one lawmakers used to put together the 1989 budget that totaled $686.6 million.

As with the surplus left after the last budget year ended, Moss said some of the anticipated 1989 surplus is the result of nonrecurring circumstances. But he said as much as half of the increase in the projection could be had to continuing economic expansion.

The state will continue to be encouraged by mounting evidence of a steadily strengthening Idaho economy, Gov. Cecil Andrus said.

Moss also emphasized that as much as $11 million of the higher revenue cushion will probably have to be added to the existing 1989 budget to cover currently unfunded items like increased Medicaid costs and the opening of the new prison.

Fire crew battles to keep creeping blaze from crossing Indian Creek

By The Associated Press

A lone firefighting crew held its ground against a creeping wildfire on a wilderness ridge in the Challis National Forest Friday, blocking its advance across Indian Creek to a guard station and air strip about four miles away.

A mile-long break line was carved into the hillside between the creek and the 800-acre Battleground fire, and areas were being burned out as needed to keep the flames from jumping to the south side of the drainage, spokesman Jim James said.

The crew was dropped into the remote area of the Frank Church-River of No Return Wilderness some 20 miles north-west of Challis after the lightning-sparked, month-old fire finally headed toward Indian Creek.

Fire managers had only been monitoring the blaze while it contained its activity to wilderness acreage and presented no threat to private property or structures.

"But when it approached that pre-determined point at Indian Creek, the crew was brought in," James said.

A second fire at Maucrite Ridge in the same general area has burned about 1,900 acres in the past month, but it was still only being monitored since it has yet to threaten private property or structure.

Meanwhile, over 500 firefighters continued carving the final mile of fire line through steep, rocky terrain around the rain-dampened 1,500-acre Spring Canyon II fire near the Wyoming border. Helicopters dumped water on smoldering hotspots inside the 10-mile perimeter of the lightning-sparked blaze, and fire bosses hoped to contain the fire by Saturday evening.

Eastern Idaho could receive some rain over the weekend, said Gary Cornell, a Forest Service information officer on the Spring Canyon fire.

"It would cool down the hotspots, but it also would make things slippery and sloppy," Cornell said.

In central Idaho's Boise National Forest, fire bosses turned mop-up on the 5,000-acre Willis Gulch and the 200-acre

Riordan Lake fires over to the local ranger districts after declaring both controlled Thursday evening. Earlier Thursday, the 2,300-acre Stewart Gulch fire that burned within a few miles of the state Capitol in Boise, was declared controlled.

The Battleground fire was presenting no major problems for the firefighters, burning mainly over sparse terrain and tight stands of fir.

"It's been creeping and crawling mainly," James said. "I'll flare up depending on the kind of fuels it's in."

Actor Ralph Meeker dies of heart attack

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actor Ralph Meeker, whose role as the macho Hal in the original production of Pierrot led to a 50-movie career and his own television show, died Friday of a heart attack. He was 67.

Meeker died at the Motion Picture and Television Hospital in Woodland Hills, where he had been admitted in September 1987, said Jean Ferris, a hospital spokeswoman.

The actor had suffered a series of strokes over the past eight years, according to longtime friend Jim Busan.

Meeker's movie roles included both leads and character parts, usually cocky and often with a mean or cowardly streak.

Meeker appeared in more than 50 movies, including The Dirty Dozen, Brannigan with John Wayne and The Naked Spur with Jimmy Stewart. He also starred for two years in his own ABC-TV series, Not for Hire.

Other movie credits included Kiss Me Deadly, in which he portrayed Mike Hammer. Teresa, his first movie, and Father of Glory.

Contra aid plan lacks GOP help

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd on Friday offered a $27 million humanitarian aid package for Nicaragua's Contra rebels as an amendment to a Pentagon spending bill, but fell short of attracting the Republican support he had sought.

GOP senators were scheduled to meet Monday to consider the package, and Byrd held out the hope that by then the package would become the elusive bipartisan compromise both sides had been striving for throughout two days of negotiations.

The amendment offered by Byrd, D-W.Va., was co-sponsored by at least a dozen Democrats, but no Republicans.

Congressional aides said the White House had not rejected Byrd's proposal, but the administration had asked to have the weekend to study it.

Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said: "We're still working on it. He said two issues, which he did not specify, remained unresolved following Friday's meeting involving senators of both parties and President Reagan's national security adviser, Colin Powell."

The proposal would continue current flow of U.S. humanitarian aid to the anti-Sandinista rebels through next March, and provide for a quick vote on resumption of military aid later this year under certain tightly circumscribed conditions.

plus square feet will house business offices for CSI, Idaho State University and University of Idaho in what was dubbed "one-stop shopping" for economic development.

Ultimately, a second wing will spread to a total of 38,000 square feet and will include classrooms for a statewide telecommunications link through Idaho Educational Facility Broadcasting System.

The IEPSB telecommunications project would feature classrooms where two-way television screens will allow students in Twin Falls to stay at home while taking courses from us far away as the University of Idaho in Moscow.

The Legislature provided $935,000 during the 1988 session to begin that telecommunications program.

Many organizations were bridged in developing the project, Glenn said, from the city and area businesses chipping in to help pave North College Road, to schools and federal grants. Commitments totaled nearly $1.6 million, he said.

tion of the total $2.6 million price tag.

"Everybody just kind of held their breath" waiting for the EDA grant, Glenn said.

But now with the windfall and a spring construction start, Glenn said CSI may go back to the Legislature to ask for a bigger contribution to bring the plans to fruition.

Glenn said construction could begin April next year, but completion before class begins the fall of 1990. "That would be just fantastic," he said.

McClure chides Andrus

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, has chided Gov. Cecil Andrus for his lack of enthusiasm over the announcement that an Idaho site is favored for one of two New Production Reactors planned by the Department of Energy.

In a letter to Andrus made public on Friday, McClure said it is obvious that a lack of unity is keeping the state of Washington from getting any new nuclear projects, and the same thing could happen to Idaho.

Energy Secretary John Herrington announced earlier in the week that a large New Production Reactor facility, to produce weapons-grade radioactive material, is planned at the Savannah River site in South Carolina. At the same time, Herrington recommended locating a second, smaller NPR facility at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory in eastern Idaho.

When Andrus heard the announcement, he called it "holoney" and unlikely to happen.

Andrus said he favored locating an NPR facility in Idaho. But considering there is substantial opposition to funding and building even one new plant to produce tritium for weapons, political reality indicates there is little chance of getting approval and funding for a second, the governor said.

"I'll believe it when I see it," said Andrus.

McClure said one Idaho's strongest benefits has been unified support for INEL.

It is clear that dissension within the Washington state delegation has seriously undermined their ability to attract new projects at Hanford. The "Island" nuclear reservation near Richland, Wash., particularly the NPR, McClure told Andrus.

In light of your public remarks, I hope that we are not heading down a similar path," he said.

Andrus was out of the office Friday afternoon.

Dunlop says Idaho region hit heavily

MALAD CITY (AP) — Declaring southeastern Idaho as hard hit by drought as any of the states in the Midwest, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture George Dunlop said, priority help may be on the way.

Touring crop lands in Oneida County where drought damage has been estimated at $4 million, Dunlop told two dozen farmers on Friday that government-owned stocks of feed may be sent to the area before other drought-stricken communities.

"It's impossible to deal with it, no matter how good a manager you are," Dunlop said as he surveyed the cracked fields.

While drought has hit most areas of southern Idaho, Oneida County is in its sixth straight month of less-than-normal precipitation and two major reservoirs were depleted before the growing season was half over.

"Our backs are against the wall and we need help," Oneida County Commissioner Glen Alder told Dunlop. "We're in severe, unprecedented drought conditions."

Dunlop said he not only wanted to see the drought conditions but take his observations back to Washington so southeastern Idaho could have top priority in receiving drought relief.

"There must be two-way communication," he said.

Feds give OK to Gem tequila

HOISE (AP) — Despite reports that a tainted tequila caused several deaths, federal officials have indicated there is no health risk connected to consumption of a brand of tequila marketed throughout Idaho, the state Liquor Dispensary says.

Dispensary Supervisor Jim Baugh said Friday he had been advised by telephone that neither the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms nor the Food and Drug Administration saw any immediate danger or health hazard associated with the tequila.

"As soon as we get it in writing it will go back on the shelves, which we expect shortly," Baugh said.

The dispensary pulled the product from the shelves after several women dining together at a Corvair d'Alene restaurant were treated for nausea and vomiting when they became ill after eating a beef dish and drinking a cocktail containing the tequila.

Prototype reactor at least 2 years off

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Further development work will mean it will be at least two years before construction of a prototype New Production Reactor can begin at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory, if the multibillion-dollar project becomes a reality.

Deputy INEL Director Robert Tiller said scientists still need to develop "targets" for producing tritium in the proposed reactors before actual construction of the reactor and production complex can start.

Tritium is produced in nuclear reactors by firing neutrons at targets made of lithium-6, which contains three protons and three neutrons. When a neutron is added, the atom rejects two neutrons and two protons, leaving tritium. Targets for the high temperature gas-cooled reactor have been studied since 1982 by scientists from INEL and GA Technologies, the major contractor. But more tests are necessary to ensure the technology will work in a production scale plant, Tiller said.

"That will take a couple of years," he said.

The actual schedule for building the Idaho NPR has not been made yet, since approval came only Wednesday, INEL Manager Don Orie said. The timetable will depend on many factors, including funding.

"The prospects of any large infusion of people into Idaho is down the road," Orie said.

The Energy Department budgeted $60 million for preliminary design and environmental work in 1989, and it will be spread between the INEL and the Savannah River Plant, which was chosen as the first priority reactor site.

Idaho

Transaction tax proposed

CORVALLIS (AP) — Idaho's sales tax cannot be reformed, and should be scrapped in favor of a transaction tax, says a former state legislator and legislative lobbyist.

Dropping the exemption-riddled 5 percent sales tax in favor of a 1 percent transaction tax would increase state revenue by $40 million to $50 million, said Russ Westerberg, Boise.

He spoke Thursday to a local task force on educational funding.

"Idahoans resist change generally," Westerberg said. He served in the Idaho House of Representatives for four years from Caribou County and for 10 years as president of Associated Taxpayers of Idaho, a tax study organization.

Idaho's sales tax started at 3 percent in 1966. But Westerberg said it has not responded to the state's change from an industry to a service-based economy.

A staggering number of exemptions have rendered the retail tax unfair, he said, listing exemptions for glass eyes, wooden crutches, Girl Scout cookies, yard sales and tractors and two-by-fours.

Thornburgh promises to avoid questionable ethics

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General-designate Richard L. Thornburgh denied Friday that he was responsible for withholding from Congress a 1975 Justice Department report on drug trafficking by Panamanian leaders and corruption among U.S. narcotics agents.

Senators referred repeatedly to the report during a generally friendly confirmation hearing on Thornburgh's nomination. The former two-term Republican governor of Pennsylvania promised to avoid the ethical questions that have plagued outgoing Attorney General Edwin Meese III.

Thornburgh, former chief of the Justice Department's criminal division testified that his involvement with the 1975 report "was peripheral at best." He said he would do everything possible to make it available to lawmakers.

Thornburgh promised to hold the Justice Department to "the highest ethical standards" if he is confirmed as Meese's successor. As the former official who established the department's public integrity section, he said he would not interfere with an internal investigation of Meese's conduct.

At the same time, he declared, "I'm a strong supporter of President Reagan. His agenda is my agenda."

Thornburgh, who heads the Harvard Institute of Politics, said that fighting the "scourge of narcotics" will be his top priority. He also promised a vigorous battle against organized crime, public corruption and white-collar crime while safeguarding civil liberties.

Members of the Senate Judiciary Committee seemed perplexed after they read an article in the Wall Street Journal on Friday which said Thornburgh participated in a decision to withhold portions of the department's drug report from Congress.

The Journal said internal department documents showed the report focused on "narcotic activity involving military authorities in Panama and a purported plot by U.S. agents more than a decade ago to assassinate Gen.

Manuel Noriega, the current Panamanian strongman. Noriega is under federal indictment in Miami for alleged involvement in drug trafficking.

Thornburgh said the report was completed before he became assistant attorney general in charge of the criminal division. But he recalled that after he assumed that post, division lawyers reviewed the report to determine whether there were any offenses that should be prosecuted. The report did not result in any court action.

"The nominee said any decision on withholding the report from Congress would be a decision of the attorney general," who then was Edward Levi. "I made no such decision. It was not in my province to make such a decision," Thornburgh said.

Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, said documents cited in the story indicated that Thornburgh attended a meeting where it was decided the department should continue to resist disclosing portions of the report to Congress.

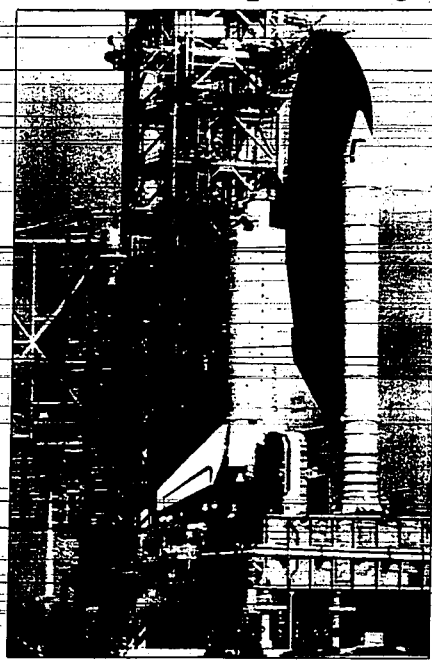

Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, said there is "much concern about how much prior administrations knew about drug trafficking" by Panamanian leaders. "I'm asking you to make that report available," Hatch said.

Thornburgh promised to do so unless the report contains information that cannot be disclosed, such as names of confidential sources.

NASA stops test firing to replace valve

Space Shuttle Discovery sits after aborted test

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — NASA officials decided Friday to be on the safe side and replace a troublesome sensor-valve combination that stopped a test firing of the space shuttle Discovery's engines, adding five to seven days to America's long-delayed return to space.

Launch pad crews immediately began erecting scaffolding and removing blast doors that are used for static firing tests to enable engine workers to get into the crowded aft end of the shuttle.

The NASA management council did not set a new date for the flight readiness test, which is required before Discovery can be committed to the first manned U.S. space mission in 2½ years. The delay means that the Sept. 29 liftoff target can't be met.

"Based on what is currently known, it appears that the flight readiness firing may occur as early as late next week," the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said. It told its crew in the launch control room that the delay would be five to seven days.

Officials had said earlier that the process of removing structures in the aft end of the orbiter, exchanging the part, and putting everything back together, would take at least five days. There was no word when the countdown for the test would begin.

Thursday's test firing of all three of the shuttle's engines was halted a second before ignition when an onboard computer detected that a hydrogen bleed valve on the No. 2 engine had not closed as it was supposed to.

Engineers believe that a sensor associated with the valve was at fault.

"The sensor was the culprit, more than the valve," said Boyce Mix, engine manager at NASA's Mississippi propulsion facility.

"It had a history of being a little more affected by the environment than ones on other valves—in the same position," said Karl Kristoffer, a NASA spokesman. "It's all a part of the valve, anyhow, and they decided to be on the safe side."

The valve is used to circulate liquid hydrogen at 423 degrees below zero through other engine parts before ignition. It must be closed when the hydrogen pours through at the rate of 1,035 gallons a minute during firing.

Richard Truly, head of the shuttle program, and his top advisers decided against a fix in the computer program to accommodate errors in the sensor.

"We are opting for a procedure which will give us additional confidence to move forward," to the test firing, Truly said in a statement issued by NASA.

Mix said the valve-sensor exchange or the computer fixes would have required about the same time.

"So it was no advantage schedule-wise of one versus the other," he said, "because of the verification that had to be done to assure that wherever the new limit was going to be set would work."

Both the hardware and software fixes, he said, had supporters. Among those arguing for the valve exchange was Rocketdyne, which builds the engines.

"There was some uncertainty in the software path... whereas a change in hardware is a very positive approach," Mix said. "Both issues were fairly presented."

Armtec closes plant after contract canceling

PALATKA, Fla. (AP) — Angry, crying employees of Armtec Inc., who consider themselves the blameless victims of a federal investigation of defense procurement practices, gathered at their plant Friday to pick up paychecks and pine-slips.

This is a shutdown. People are sitting in the street," said Bud Eskridge, manufacturing manager for Armtec, whose 80 employees assembled electronic chassis and wiring harnesses used in military radar and weapons systems.

The company closed Wednesday, claiming the closing was temporary, after Unisys Corp., the main purchaser of Armtec production, canceled its contract with the company. Paychecks were handed out Friday after Unisys wired $66,000 to Barnett Bank in Palatka to help cover costs. "They didn't give us a reason. They just said Unisys stopped the payroll on all the contracts we had with them," said employee Gloria Roberts of Palatka. She said the company notified employees about five minutes before closing Wednesday that they were out of work.

Armtec was started in 1986 by William W. Roberts, a retired Unisys executive, and William M. Galvin, a defense procurement consultant. Now federal agents are investigating whether Roberts, Galvin and consultant Charles F. Gardner diverted Unisys funds to Rep. Bill Chappell, D-Fla., chairman of the powerful House committee which oversees billions of dollars in military spending. Armtec's records were seized by FBI agents in a raid June 14.

Senate refuses to increase 'Star Wars' spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate refused Friday to increase spending for Star Wars, setting up another potential fight with President Reagan over the budget for his cherished missile defense program.

The chamber voted down, 50-44, a move to add $500 million to the Star Wars budget for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1.

"This is a preview of the presidential campaign," Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., a supporter of the increase, told his colleagues during the brief debate.

Supporters of the increase "believe in protecting our security," McCain said, while "opponents believe in undermining our security."

But Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., said Star Wars "has been characterized by hype and thin flim" and urged that military spending increases go for needed improvements in conventional defenses instead of research projects.

The decision came as the Senate began a second attempt to write a Pentagon budget bill.

Reagan vetoed the first Pentagon measure approved by the Democratic-controlled Congress, partly because the bill cut too deeply into Reagan's request for the Strategic Defense Initiative, as Star Wars is formally known.

Reagan wanted $4.8 billion for SDI next year, compared with the current $3.9 billion figure. The vetoed bill would have authorized $4.0 billion.

The measure now on the Senate floor is also based on a $4.0 billion SDI budget, Sen. Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo., moved to add $500 million to that account.

Wallop said congressional reductions in the SDI budget mean that the entire range of possible anti-missile technologies cannot be pursued.

Another supporter, Sen. Pete Wilson, R-Calif., said, "What we have here is an opportunity to set things right."

But Sen. James Exon, D-Neb., said "if we have additional money" in the Pentagon budget, "there are other, higher priority places for that money to go." He said it should be budgeted to improve conventional defenses, particularly in Western Europe.

Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., agreed with Exon, said: "We have a crucial shortfall in conventional capability. Rather than a huge increase in SDI, we can far better use this money for needed improvements in conventional material."

The bill appropriates money to pay for Pentagon programs that would have been authorized by the earlier measure rejected by Reagan.

The Senate is trying to finish the bill before it leaves next week for a recess that won't end until after Labor Day.

The appropriations bill that passes the Senate will go to a conference committee to be reconciled with the companion, but different measure passed seven weeks ago by the House.

Judge postpones North's hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The trial of ex-White House aide Oliver L. North was postponed Friday until after the presidential election to give lawyers more time to study hundreds of thousands of top-secret documents.

The decision by U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell came the Sept. 20 date means the first criminal trial arising from the Iran-Contra affair won't be held while Vice President George Bush campaigns for the presidency.

Bush, whose acquiescence in the decision to conduct arms-for-hostage deals with Iran has been criticized by Democratic rival Michael Dukakis, will be free to campaign before the Nov. 8 election without possibly embarrassing reports from the trial.

North's lawyers had threatened to subpoena Reagan as a witness, apparently as part of their efforts to show that the former National Security Council aide was authorized to divert arms-sale profits to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

The delay will inevitably renew speculation about post-election presidential pardons for North and former national security adviser John M.

Poindexter, who is scheduled to be tried separately.

President Reagan has repeatedly defended both men as innocent of any criminal wrongdoing. He said in May that had not ruled out granting them pardons, but he indicated they would not be forthcoming until a verdict was rendered. Reagan leaves office next Jan. 21.

Navy to commission new nuclear sub

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy said Friday it will commission its newest nuclear-powered attack submarine this weekend during ceremonies in Connecticut.

The USS San Juan will be moved to active service on Saturday morning at the Naval Submarine Base at Groton, Conn., the service said. The San Juan is designed to hunt down and destroy enemy submarines.

principal address during the ceremonies.

The nuclear attack sub will be the third U.S. Navy ship to bear the name San Juan, the capital of Puerto Rico.

The vessel is 360 feet long, 33 feet wide and displaces about 6,900 tons when submerged. A so-called Los Angeles-class sub, the San Juan is designed to hunt down and destroy enemy submarines.

Biaggi resigns his seat in Congress

NEW YORK (AP) — Rep. Mario Biaggi, convicted of corruption charges twice within a year, tearfully resigned his seat in Congress on Friday rather than face expulsion by his colleagues.

Biaggi, 70, said he left "with sadness but no regrets," and continued to assert his innocence of the charges that led to his downfall. "Not a single penny, gift, trip, not a share of stock, ever came to me," he said.

Once the city's most highly decorated police officer, Biaggi, a Democrat, served 20 years in Congress and was so popular in his district he was considered likely to win again in November, despite his convictions.

But he said he was quitting his re-election race.

"Early I actually ended a career in public service that has spanned almost 50 years," going back to his days as a young letter-carrier, an emotion-choked Biaggi told reporters crammed into his Bronx office.

The end came when a federal jury convicted him Thursday of racketeering, extortion and bribing through Wadsworth Corp., a South Bronx military contractor that made payoffs to get government work. He faces up to 20 years on the top count.

Biaggi said he was resigning, effective immediately, because his appeals will take too much time for him to continue to serve in Congress. "I wouldn't be able to give my constituents all the time they deserve," he said.

But there were other pressures on Biaggi to step down.

The House next month was to consider expelling him for his earlier, unrelated federal conviction on charges of taking an illegal gratuity and obstructing justice.

Biaggi said he had asked party leaders to strike his name from the September primary ballots. He had filed on both the Democratic and Republican lines; candidates in New York often run for nominations of parties of which they are not members.

A spokesman for the state Board of Elections said removing Biaggi's name was complicated but possible.

Two other men were running in the Democratic primary for Biaggi's seat, state Assemblyman Elliot L. Engel and former Assemblyman Vincent Marchiselli. Biaggi did not say if he would back one of them or seek to give his spot on the ballot to another candidate.

No one else was running as a Republican. The Democratic nominee usually wins the general election because Democrats outnumber Republicans by eight to one in the Bronx.

Rep. Mario Biaggi and wife, Marie, console each other.

Trial set for Libyans charged with plot

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) —

Eight defendants pleaded innocent Friday at their arraignment on federal charges they plotted to use Libyan government money to recruit "disgruntled support in the United States."

U.S. District Judge Claude Hilton set a trial date of Oct. 17, and scheduled an Aug. 31 pretrial hearing to determine how to handle any classified information involved in the case.

The defendants include six Libyans and two other Arab nationals named in a 40-count indictment last week.

U.S. Attorney Henry Hudson has said the case involves issues far beyond just diversion of funds, "including a plot to assassinate a top U.S. official."

Administration sources later identified the official as former White House aide Oliver North, who himself is facing a federal trial on charges stemming from his involvement in the Iran-Contra affair.

The indictment in the Libyan case does not charge the eight with the assassination plot. A federal prosecutor said this week that more indictments could come in the case.

The eight are charged with laundering money and violating the 1986 regulations that prohibit travel to and transactions with Libya.

New understanding of comets strengthens theory

BALTIMORE (AP) — New understanding of comets and cosmic dust particles strengthens the theory that matter from space showering on a primitive Earth provided the fundamental organic chemicals from which life evolved.

Mayo Greenberg, an astronomer with the University of Leiden in the Netherlands, said that studies of Halley's comet and laboratory studies of cosmic dust particles provide powerful evidence that comets could easily have supplied Earth with the raw materials for the evolution of life.

"The condition for the origin of life are pretty easy in terms of basic original organic molecules," Greenberg said in an interview at the 20th assembly of the International Astronomical Observatory.

More and more, he said, studies by astronomers are supporting the theory that "comets may have been the prime source of organic molecules to form the first building blocks of life."

He said the chemicals in the comets come from cosmic dust particles that were processed through billions of years in space.

Greenberg said cosmic dust particles — so small that 100 billion would make but only a pea-sized pebble — are spewed out of cooling stars.

"The particles cool rapidly and help form the vast clouds seen in views of the universe."

Kennedy children offer support to Chavez

DELANO, Calif. (AP) — Children of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy met with United Farm Workers Union President Cesar Chavez to offer their support in his fight with table grape growers and urge him to end his 27-week fast.

There has always been criticism of persons like Cesar Chavez, Kathleen Kennedy Townsend, 37, said after the visit Thursday. "He takes on the growers and he takes on the powerful."

Kennedy's eldest child joined her sister Kerry Kennedy, 28, and brother Douglas, 21, to pay a 20-minute call on Chavez. She said she "tried to persuade Chavez to eat, but he refused."

"He was in high spirits but very weak," she said.

Twenty years ago, their father, then running for the Democratic presidential nomination, paid a visit to Chavez during his first fast. Kennedy and Chavez broke bread together during an Easter Mass, ending the labor leader's 25-day fast.

The 61-year-old Chavez was in the 20th day of his latest fast Friday. He is suffering from dizziness, nausea, vomiting, dehydration, malnutrition and shedding weight at the rate of a half-pound a day, Dr. Fidel Huerta said.

The factor here is Cesar's age. He is not as young as he used to be," Huerta said at a news conference Thursday. "Although his spirits and his motivation are as high now as they were then."

Huerta has asked Chavez to enter the hospital because of complications brought on by the fast, namely increased levels of uric acid in Chavez's blood. But Chavez, who has lost 20 pounds, so far has refused.

He is fasting to promote the union's boycott of California table grapes. He has no contract among those growers and is demanding use of five pesticides that he says are dangerous to be abolished.

Chavez claims pesticides have poisoned croplands and caused cancer in residents in farm towns, such as nearby McFarland where 13 children have been diagnosed with cancer.

Chavez has not said how long the fast will continue. He also went 25 days without food in 1972, as well as in 1968, to advance farm worker issues.

Cuban radio calls inquiry into Redford visit a 'witch hunt'

MIAMI (AP) — Cuban state-run radio on Friday charged a U.S. Treasury Department inquiry into actor-director Robert Redford's recent visit to the communist nation constitutes a "witch hunt."

A Cuban radio report, monitored in Miami, said the inquiry "constitutes a violation of the free movement of U.S. citizens protected by the U.S. Constitution."

"These threats by the U.S. government against Redford," the report said, "mean there's a new witch hunt against those in the United States who challenge that country's ban on travel to Cuba by its citizens."

The report blamed U.S. President Ronald Reagan for the inquiry into Redford's three-day Havana visit last May and compared, unfavorably, the president's cinematic career with Redford's.

It appears this new witch hunt has been approved by that frustrated movie actor, Mr. Reagan, whose movie activities were the opposite of Robert Redford's," the report said.

Lawyers for Redford said in Los Angeles on Thursday that the actor had received a letter from the treasury department asking about his trip to Cuba.

"I wouldn't really call it an investigation," they sent a letter and we told them the facts," said attorney Vincent Chiofalo.

Redford, 50, has said he made the trip to take part in a scriptwriting workshop for women. He said he chatted briefly with Cuban President Fidel Castro during his Havana stay.

Chicken magnate weds rice producer in private ceremony

SALISBURY, Md. (AP) — If nothing else, Frank Perdue and his new bride have the basics for a good gumbo.

Perdue, 68, head of Perdue Farms Inc., the nation's fourth largest poultry producer, married Mitzi Henderson Ayala, 35, in a private ceremony Sunday in Washington, D.C.

She is a California rice producer and president of the American Agri-Women, a national non-profit coalition of women in farming, ranching and agricultural organizations.

Perdue's son, Jim, was the best man, while the bride was given away by her children, Joac and Carlos. The couple's honeymoon plans were not disclosed.

It is Perdue's third marriage and Mrs. Perdue's second.

Charles credits mother for love of the piano

NEW YORK (AP) — Music legend Ray Charles says that he was learning to cope with blindness he vowed never to own a guide dog, a cane or a guitar.

"Why, it seems every blind blues singer I ever heard played a guitar," Charles, 57, said in an interview published in the Aug. 7 issue of Parade.

Charles credits his mother, who died when he was 15, with steering him toward the piano. He began traveling the South with his band and rhythm-and-blues bands after his mother's death, but "in most cases, I'd play the piano, because they already had singers."

Danish critics pan Domingo's opera show

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — Danish critics Friday panned a show featuring Spanish opera star Placido Domingo.

One newspaper headlined its review: "Domingo — not worth a peseta." Another said: "Rotten tomatoes to the organizers."

Domingo's show in the Spanish zarzuela opera tradition at the Folkoper Theater began after a delay of more than one hour. The troupe of singers and dancers had no orchestra, using recordings for accompaniment that resulted in what the Politiken daily called a "bathroom sound."

"Scandalous slovenliness," Politiken said, while Jyllands-Posten called the performance a "second-grade experience, not to say an outright deceit, considering the ticket prices of up to 1,500 kroner ($209)."

The Aktuelt daily said Domingo beamed when compared with the rest of the program.

U.S.'s oldest woman celebrates 112 years

CUTLER RIDGE, Fla. (AP) — America's oldest woman, Birdie May Vogt, celebrated her 112th birthday with a little party and received birthday wishes from President Reagan.

Ms. Vogt, named by the Guinness Book of World Records as America's oldest person and the world's "second-oldest," remains alert and healthy, despite a substantial loss of hearing and sight.

She is the daughter of a farmer and a teacher, and she has been married to her husband, John, for 57 years.

Guinness' next edition will call her the world's oldest, but that will be corrected. Officials just learned that Madame Calmait of Arles, France, is older by 17 months.

"Is it my birthday now?" Ms. Vogt asked Wednesday as she was wheeled into her party. Surrounded by 23 guests, she received gifts, flowers, a cake and birthday wishes from the president.

The only record of her birth is a page torn from the family Bible, noting the event Aug. 3, 1876, in Akron, Ohio.

When her father's crewmate, Capt. Gary Sigler, was returned home in 1923 after being held as a prisoner of war, Stephenson said she felt hope.

But time passed and, he said, he began hoping his father had died in the crash, instead of being held as a prisoner.

In 1976, the courts determined that his father was presumed dead.

A memorial service was held at Mountain Home Air Force Base. Stephenson said, "Every time there is a memorial service or ceremony, I feel grief. Through the years, it has been an emotional roller coaster, but now it has kind of stabilized."

"The American people need to be constantly reminded about the war," he said. "Their understanding was altered because information about the war was not being passed on, and then they were confronted with it. But we want them to be aware, we can't just forget."

Stephenson said 2,400 servicemen are still missing from the Vietnam war.

"The American people need to be constantly reminded about the war," he said. "Their understanding was altered because information about the war was not being passed on, and then they were confronted with it. But we want them to be aware, we can't just forget."

Eagle woman's MIA on bracelet finally home

EAGLE (AP) — Donna Guerber of Eagle discovered Wednesday that the man whose name was on her 20-year-old Vietnam War missing-in-action bracelet would be buried this week, and his son lives in her town.

Mrs. Guerber, the wife of Eagle Mayor Steve Guerber, heard the news on the way to work.

"I wanted to make sure I still had it (the bracelet), so I looked in my steel box with all my treasures, and it was there," she said. "I was relieved. I thought to myself, 'My guy has been found.'"

The man whose name was on Mrs. Guerber's bracelet was Air Force Col. Mark Stephenson, who was shot down over Vietnam on April 29, 1967. His remains, which were among those of a dozen American servicemen released to U.S. custody last April by Vietnam, initially had been misidentified.

The news report said Stephenson's son, Mark Lane Stephenson II, lived in the Boise area, so Mrs. Guerber looked him up in the telephone directory and met him Wednesday night.

Stephenson and his family were in Riverton, Utah, Friday for his father's funeral.

Mrs. Guerber gave Stephenson the bracelet she bought in 1968 in Peacerville, Buck then, the bracelets were a popular way to remember servicemen who were missing in action or prisoners of war in Vietnam.

"I had some close friends that went to Vietnam who had died," she said. "This was one way I could make a statement."

Mark Stephenson II is the Idaho coordinator of and on the board of directors of the National League of Families of POW and MIA of Southeast Asia.

The culmination of the long search for Stephenson's father prompted calls from others who had saved the bracelets with the Air Force pilot's name.

"I was surprised," Stephenson said of the calls. "I also got a letter from a woman in Wisconsin who wrote after seeing me on TV."

He said he probably would save the bracelets along with some he has for other MIA Idahans.

Stephenson said 2,400 servicemen are still missing from the Vietnam war.

"The American people need to be constantly reminded about the war," he said. "Their understanding was altered because information about the war was not being passed on, and then they were confronted with it. But we want them to be aware, we can't just forget."

China awards 2 whistleblowers

BEIJING (AP) — Two men received the equivalent of a year's salary as a reward for uncovering a plot to resell 1,000 tons of urea as fertilizer, it was reported Friday.

The article in the China Youth News was one of an increasing number of anti-corruption reports appearing in the Chinese press.

The Youth News said that three days after the Chengdu Economic Crime-Reporting Center opened in Sichuan province in July, the men went to the center and blew the whistle on the Peng Xian County Agricultural Center.

The company had received

1,000 tons of urea, a chemical found in urine and used as fertilizer, from the government at a low, state-set price, but the urea had disappeared. An investigation revealed the manager of the company had resold the goods at a profit of about $65,000, the paper said.

The whistleblowers were given rewards of about $270 each. The average salary for Chinese urban dwellers is about $245.

Corruption-reporting stations are opening all over China. The government said that by September every province will have one.

On Friday, it announced the opening of a telephone hotline in Beijing to report corruption.

Brazilian Rambo fans get violent

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Moviegoers at the packed Brazil premier of "Rambo III" got violent, smashing theater windows and damaging seats before a tear gas grenade went off and emptied the house, police said Friday.

No one was injured or arrested in the incident Thursday night.

It was not clear if the tear gas was unleashed by state police trying to keep the peace or by the unruly movie fans.

Buhl receives grant to revitalize economy

By ADRIENNE TOOMEY
Times-News writer

BUHL — Buhl is fueled for economic flight by its recent inclusion in the Eastern Idaho Rural Community Revitalization Project.

The three-year program will hire a full-time development specialist to help community leaders attract new businesses and expand the tax base.

"We're looking forward to working through our economic problems," said Claude McKee, Buhl mayor. "The City Council endorsed it unanimously."

Two other Idaho communities are targeted by the revitalization program, which is sponsored by the Idaho State University in partnership with the College of Southern Idaho.

The program is funded largely by a $300,000 grant from the Northwest Area Foundation in Minnesota.

The three communities were chosen because they represent a cross-section of Idaho's economy. Buhl's economy relies heavily on agriculture and aquaculture. The two other communities, Lava Hot Springs and Teton Valley, rely on tourism and large ranching operations respectively.

Diverse communities were selected because "the program hopes to gain knowledge which can be transferred to other communities which have similar problems," said Les Purce, director of ISU's Research Park and Economic Development.

The economic specialists in Lava Hot Springs and Teton Valley will be employed part-time, but the Buhl specialist will work full-time.

"This kind of opportunity only comes by now and then," said Michael Glenn, assistant to the president at CSI. "We would be putting up a lot of resources if we only had a part-time person."

The city of Buhl and CSI are both picking up $5,000 annually to expand the position to full-time. Buhl will also contribute $5,000 to set up an office for the specialist.

The specialist's job description will be written by CSI and Buhl leaders next week.

"We want to get started as soon as possible," said Glenn. "It's nice to have the help in the beginning but then you want to roll up your sleeves and get working."

Once the specialist is hired, he or she will work in conjunction with the Buhl Economic Council to formulate and implement an economic plan. "We're the help," said Dexter Rogers, a Buhl Economic Council member. "We've bitten off a pretty big chunk of work."

Many of the program's goals are predetermined by the Northwest Area Foundation. The Northwest Area Foundation "doesn't just write out a check and say, 'Gee whiz, go and have a good time for three years,'" said Glenn.

The specialist and the Buhl-Economic Council must assess the community's economic and leadership attributes. On the basis of this information, they will map out a strategy to lure new businesses and expand old ones. Resources existing in higher education, local governments and community organizations will be used.

Buhl's economic specialist will provide development assistance to surrounding communities. This aspect of the program initially met with some resistance. "There were some doubts about it, but they were ironed out," said McKee. The specialist "will spend half to three quarters of his time here. Once everyone realized that, there weren't any problems with it."

By helping other communities, the specialist will indirectly aid Buhl. "What's good for Castleford or Hagerman is good for Buhl," said Glenn. "Economic growth doesn't stop at city limits. In a rural community, growth is a regional concept."

France gives tribute to area World War I veterans

All Americans defending the French received certificates of appreciation

By RACHEL HARRELL
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Seventy years after the war-to-end-all-wars, France has paid the debt it has long felt it owed American soldiers.

Elbert Rice, 91, of Jerome, A.L. Lillibridge, 91, of Filer, and Dean Shipley, 92, formerly of Kimberly and now living at the Old Soldiers Home in Boise, were delighted, if a bit surprised, to hear from the French after so long.

"I was dumbfounded, to say the least," said Shipley.

"A final tribute, in the form of a certificate of appreciation, was delivered this summer to all Americans who defended France in World War I."

"It's a wonderful thing," Lillibridge says. "I didn't know they were going to send it."

The award program was coordinated by the Veterans Administration, which started trying to locate qualified vets this April, finally asking for names from Idaho to the French Embassy. On July 8 the first certificates were presented by Gov. Cecil Andrus, along with his own personal letter, to seven residents of the Idaho State Nursing Home. Later, the certificate and letter were sent to other veterans throughout the state.

Although their backgrounds vary, the three local vets all served until a few weeks before the Armistice, and were wounded. Shipley caught some shrapnel in his hip, Lillibridge received what he describes as "slight" wounds and Rice was gassed.

Lillibridge had joined an ammunition train after being stationed in Atlanta, Ga.

Rice was a machine gunner in the 103rd Infantry Division. He fought in the battles of St. Mihiel and Verdun, among others.

Shipley says that he "got in (to the war) by mistake," having joined the National Guard for a little extra money, just days before war was declared. He served with the Missouri and Kansas National Guards, which became the 35th Division, 140th Infantry, directly under Gen. John J. "Black Jack" Pershing. As a drill sergeant, he spent most of the war on guard duty, "so close to the German line we could hear what was going on over there, and they could hear us."

None of them has been back to France since the war. Shipley seems to regret this, but Lillibridge is adamant that "I don't want to see no foreign country."

Lillibridge says, "I don't know (why France is honoring us now) — ashamed of themselves, I guess." After all, "we did the fighting."

Rice and Shipley, however, are just pleased to be remembered in such style, and to be reminded of a time they are still happy to talk about.

185,000 must file Snake River water rights claims

By MARK PRATT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The family who draws from a backyard well. The rancher who waters his cattle from a stock pond. The couple who owns a cabin with plumbing in the national forest. All are among the 185,000 water users who have to file a claim in the Snake River adjudication, says the state Department of Water Resources.

The adjudication is a court-ordered determination of all the water rights in the Snake River Basin that grew out of the Swan Falls water agreement between the state and Idaho Power Co.

In Lincoln, Adams, Clark and Idaho counties where the filing deadline passed, fewer users filed than expected, says Water Resources. The state is trying to figure out why. Notices to file a claim with the state will be in the mail in Twin Falls County on Sept. 5. Claims can be filed at Water Resources offices, 2148 4th Ave. E.

The filing deadline is Dec. 22. Some Magic Valley residents see the adjudication as an unnecessary and expensive hassle, but the state defends the adjudication. "There has never been a basinwide adjudication," says David Shaw, adjudication bureau chief.

The Glenn Sorenson family of Dietrich objects to the expense and red tape of the adjudication. They filed on a farm-house well and a large pump. "As many problems as the farmer has, every time you turn around the government has another expense," they said.

Jack Hirai, a Gooding County farmer, will file on three irrigation and two domestic wells. To him the adjudication is just something that has to be done. "I have to hurry and do it," he said. The Gooding County deadline is Sept. 1.

Bill Swan, who runs cattle in Twin Falls and Owyhee counties, agrees with the Sorensens that the adjudication is a nuisance. He will spend several thousand dollars and maybe more to take care of his filings.

Swan is filing on irrigated meadows, stock ponds and irrigation pipelines in both counties and runoff ponds on public land in Owyhee County.

Swan doesn't understand why water rights that have been already adjudicated have to go through the process again.

Every water user between the Wyoming line and Lewiston is part of the adjudication that is based in 5th District Court in Twin Falls. But in some cases, organizations will file for individual water users. Cities file for their customers. The North Side and Twin Falls utility companies file for shareholders. The federal land management agencies are filing for water on their lands.

The Sawtooth National Forest is going to file, but it is advising people who lease land in the forest to file as well, says Ed Waldapfel, Sawtooth spokesman.

"The public perception is the adjudication is a scam to make money for the state," says Loren Holmes of DWR in Twin Falls.

But actually the state will lose money collecting $25 for each domestic water right filing, he says.

Other claims cost more. The state collects a $50 one-time fee based on the use. In addition, irrigators pay $1 per acre. A $3.50

Employment improves during July

By The Associated Press and The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — The employment picture in the Magic Valley improved during July in spite of a higher seasonally adjusted unemployment rate.

Normal seasonal layoffs at Universal Frozen Foods are attributed for the rise in the unemployment rate from 4.9 percent in June to 5.6 percent in July.

"When a company the size of Universal lays off its work force, even temporarily, the rise in the rate can be significant," said Lon McDonald, labor analyst at the Job Service in Twin Falls.

But at the same time, the number of people actually employed increased by 1,115 since June, he said. The size of the labor force has been expanding steadily for several months now.

The labor force for Twin Falls, Gooding and Jerome counties stands at 37,079. Of those, 2,020 are unemployed and 35,059 have jobs.

The 5.6 percent July unemployment rate this year is just slightly above the 5.5 percent last year.

"The Magic Valley economy is strengthening," McDonald said. "And we will now see further increases in employment from food processing, agriculture, services and government in the late summer and early fall."

The economic resurgence statewide continued unabated in July, aided by the corps of firefighters in the forests, as the seasonally adjusted unemployment rate plunged to its lowest

Magic Valley tourism center nearing its opening date

By DENISE TURNER
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — A visitors center for the city, the longtime dream of several community leaders, is about to become a reality.

A western-style tourist information building overlooking the Snake River Canyon at the southern end of the Perrine Memorial Bridge should open sometime this month, Chamber of Commerce Director Buzz Langdon said.

Such a facility is long overdue, Langdon said. "The Magic Valley is the center of activity for more than eight counties, and it is a natural place to which we can invite people because there are so many things to see and do," he said.

The 30-by-30-foot building, financed through state grants and local donations, will be made of wood and have a western theme. Todd Blass, who is working with the Magic Valley Homebuilders Association to build the facility, it also will have a false front with a wood overhang porch and is located to offer good views of the canyon.

Inside, most of the space will be taken up by a display area where tourist items will be sold and volunteers will be available for questions. A smaller room will be used for storage space and an employee restroom.

The exterior design for the center, being built on land owned by the State Transportation Department, was donated by local architect Richard Heinzel.

Promoters hope a fence will stop vandalism and late-night parties in the area. A gate will be shut when the center is closed.

The original idea, to revamp a mobile home and use that facility at least temporarily in the beginning, was dropped because of concerns about the winds and weather conditions of the area, Blass said.

Currently plans call for no public restrooms, mostly because the closest approach of the city's sewer system is about midway between Magic Valley Mall and the facility's site. Langdon said hooking into the city's system would cost nearly as much as the entire project, about $30,000. A lift station also would be required, since the center will be at a lower elevation than the city pipes.

"It would be nice to have but the cost would be prohibitive at this time," Langdon said.

He said volunteers at the center can direct people to the mail or rest areas near the intersection along the Interstate. Restrooms might be put in in future years.

Hagerman water soon to be frog-, crawdad-free

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

HAGERMAN — Complaints about chunks of dead frogs and crawdads in the Hagerman drinking water should be ending soon.

A water outlet at Big Springs northeast of town has been sealed with aluminum and concrete, enclosing this source of city water, Mayor Merle Owsley told the City Council on Tuesday.

Faced with two complaints of frog and crawdad pieces in city water, the council recently hired Danny Coates to remove rotted wooden planks that partially covered a concrete box. The box is at the base of a cliff where spring water emerges from a tunnel and enters a pipeline into the town.

Coates ripped off the planks and put down a sheet of aluminum and covered that with concrete.

He also filled a gap between the top of the box and the top of the tunnel with rocks and concrete. Water now flows from the tunnel directly into the sealed box, Owsley said.

"The face of the tunnel is rock- up," Owsley said. "It's closed up very tight, and nothing can get in."

The project cost $2,900.

The council hired Coates after Gary Burkett of the State Department of Health and Welfare in Twin Falls received two complaints in July that a piece of a frog and then a crawdad was found in Hagerman water.

Burkett said the "complaints" did not want their names made public.

Burkett said such complaints are unusual but of a serious nature. "It was infrequent but its pretty significant that it can happen," he said.

"Most water systems are constructed to exclude that from happening."

In related business, George Lemmon of the Big Springs Water Users said he thought his group's $900 share of the enclosure cost was contributed in labor.

He said the water users helped fix the road so a cement truck could get in and helped install an iron grate at the sealed box, Owsley said.

Film continues to rankle

TUPELO, Miss. (AP) — Preacher Donald Wildmon has for 12 years warred against what he sees as pornography and excessive violence in magazines, TV and movies, but he says there's a difference with "The Last Temptation of Christ."

"Never have we seen anything anywhere, at any time, that would begin to hold a little bitty flicker to the reaction this film is receiving," said the United Methodist minister.

Wildmon's most recent success came last month when CBS announced it was cutting 3' seconds out of an episode of "Mighty Mouse" after complaints by his American Family Association that the scene gave the impression that the cartoon hero was shorting cocaine.

And now he has turned his attention to "The Last Temptation of Christ," calling the script "the most perverted, distorted account of the historical and biblical Jesus I have ever read."

Universal Studios says the uproar over the movie prompted it to advance the release date to Aug. 1.

"The best thing that can be done for 'The Last Temptation of Christ' at this time is to make it available to the American people and allow them to draw their own conclusions based on fact, not fallacy," said Tom Pollock, chairman of MCA Inc.'s motion picture group, in a news release Thursday.

MCA is Universal's parent group.

The script, based on Nikos Kazantzakis' 1955 novel, has Jesus hallucinating while he hangs on the cross. In his final hours, he dreams that he rejects his godliness and lives as a normal man.

Wildmon called on Christians to boycott for at least one year any theater that shows the movie and to boycott all other MCA products. MCA also makes recordings.

A riot of other businesses ranging from toys to the motel concessions in Yosemite National Park. Not all Christian leaders object to the movie. The Rev. Dave Pomeroy, a spokesman for the National Council of Churches who saw a rough cut of the film in New York last month, defended it.

Idaho McClure bill on dam bans up for vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. James McClure's bill prohibiting dams on stretches of the Snake and Salmon rivers has won committee approval and is up for a final vote in the Senate.

The bill was approved by the Energy and Natural Resources Committee Thursday. An identical bill has been introduced in the House by Rep. Larry Craig.

The measure prohibits the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission from licensing any new dams between the end of the Wild and Scenic portion of the Snake River and slack water at Lewiston. Also included is the Salmon River between Long Tom Bar and the Salmon's confluence with the Snake.

If the measure becomes law, the newly protected portions of the Salmon and Snake would connect with the Wild and Scenic and Recreation portions of the Salmon running through central Idaho wilderness areas.

Combined, the protected sections of the rivers will run between North Fork and slack water at Lewiston.

McClure introduced the legislation after a Connecticut-based hydroelectric company, Asotin Hydro Co., began studying the possibility of building a dam on the Snake River near Asotin, Wash.

Givens predicts Democrat win in the West

NAMPA (AP) — Democratic congressional candidate Jeannie Givens has opened a southern Idaho campaign headquarters in Nampa, buoyed by her poll of the 1st District which shows a majority of people pulling for Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis for president.

The office will be shared with the Canyon County Democratic organization.

"My campaign has taken off like a rocket," she said. "The message is simple. It is a meat-and-potatoes kind of theme: getting back to basics."

The Coeur d'Alene legislator is trying to unseat Republican incumbent Congressman Larry Craig, who is seeking a fifth term.

Givens said results from a telephone poll of 400 people residing in the district show Dukakis leading Republican George Bush, 46 percent to 38 percent.

"This is very good news for the Givens campaign," she said. "It appears that Idaho could go Democratic for the first time in 20 years."

Caldwell man who drowned is identified

EMMETT (AP) — A 21-year-old Caldwell man who drowned Wednesday after attempting to swim through a tunnel on the Black Canyon Canal near Emmett has been identified as Adam C. Mangum.

His name had been withheld pending notification of relatives. Gem County Sheriff Bill McConnell said Mangum was swimming with three other friends from Caldwell when the drowning occurred at 4:45 p.m. about 6 miles southwest of Emmett.

The Gem County Sheriff's dive team found his body about 1,500 feet downstream from the mouth of the tunnel, he said.

McConnell said the tunnel has become popular as a swimming spot and asked everyone to stay away from it. A 16-year-old was recently pulled alive from the tunnel by county officials.

AMERICAN FALLS (AP) — Harvey Taylor, 40, Reno, Nev., was killed Thursday night when his motorcycle went off Interstate 80 one mile east of here.

Idaho State Police officers said Taylor's motorcycle left the road about 7 p.m. and crashed in a median. He was pronounced dead at the scene.

Research clinics provide answers about atomic bomb

By STEVEN K. PAULSON

Associated Press

HIROSHIMA, Japan — The bomb still kills 43 years later, with cancers that consume blood, bones, lungs and breasts. It maims with cataracts, genetic damage and with stunted growth in those who were children.

The first atomic bomb used in war dropped on this city Aug. 6, 1945, and leveled it in a blinding blast of 12,000-degree heat, killing 78,000 people instantly.

Scores die each year from the delayed effects.

More than 4,500 names were added during the past year to the list of survivors who died during the past year. Dr. Itsuo Shigematsu, head of the Radiation Effects Research Foundation, said at least 80 or 90 of those resulted from illnesses directly related to the explosion.

"For these people, and other survivors of the blast, the war has not ended," he said. "They all wonder if and when they'll come down with these diseases as a result of the bombing."

In laboratories on a mountain overlooking the tragically historic city, Shigematsu and nearly 300 colleagues study the effects of nuclear war, trying to add meaning to lives lost or shortened. They also try to comfort the estimated 176,000 survivors.

A similar facility was established in Nagasaki, with nearly 200 employees to examine victims of the second atomic bombing on Aug. 9, 1945. That explosion killed nearly 70,000 people and left about 200,000 survivors.

President Harry Truman established the research facility in 1947 as the Atomic Bomb Casualty Commission. In 1975, it became a joint U.S.-Japanese effort under the new name.

Employees of the Hiroshima center include about 100 "hibakusha," — bomb survivors — who want to learn more about the disaster. It has an annual budget of about $306 million and has conducted life span studies of more than 120,000 people.

It conducts genetic research to determine the long-term effects of nuclear war and pathological studies in an effort to find causes of death. Doctors visit hospitals and perform two or three autopsies a month at the center.

There is a meditation room for grieving relatives.

The clinic sees an average 40 patients daily, both victims and members of their families. It tests walk-in patients who have come forward more than 40 years later, fearing lingering effects of the bomb.

Test results are given to patients and their doctors. The center does not treat patients because physicians complained of lost business.

West German government rebukes Rust on daredevil flight

The Associated Press

BONN, West Germany — The government publicly rebuked Matthias Rust on Friday for failing to show more remorse over his daredevil flight to Moscow, and the foreign minister reportedly said the young pilot is no hero.

"It would have been better if Rust had stated immediately after his return that such an act should never again be performed," said government spokesman Norbert Schaefer.

He called Rust's May 1987 flight to Moscow an act of "huge stupidity" and said other young pilots should not be given the impression they could get away with duplicating it.

Schaefer also criticized the West German magazine Stern for ushering Rust away after his return without allowing other journalists to interview him. Stern has an exclusive contract with Rust for his story.

"The federal government is able to imagine better behavior than this,"

Schaefer said.

Rust was flown back to West Germany on Wednesday after the Soviets released him early from a four-year prison term for his dramatic Red Square landing.

The illegal flight from Helsinki, Finland, to Moscow — which Rust called a peace mission — led to the dismissal of the Soviet defense minister.

Along with the rare public government criticism of a private citizen, the 20-year-old Rust received other bad news on Friday: Hamburg officials said they had suspended Rust's flying license.

The action was taken because Rust's flight to Moscow had violated many international and national regulations for air traffic, said a spokeswoman at the Hamburg licensing office, who asked not to be identified.

She said that if Rust wants to have the license renewed he will have to take an examination to "show that he is responsible."

Rust may also face prosecution on criminal charges for endangering air traffic and mistaking his true destination to the Hamburg Aero Club, which owns the famous single-engine Cessna that landed on the Red Square.

In an interview with The Associated Press on his flight from Moscow, Rust said he only partly regrets his stunt and maintains that it improved relations "between West Germany and the Soviet Union."

But Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher warned West Germans against glorifying Rust's flight, the illustrated magazine Bunte reported.

Genscher also said he expected that "Mister Rust would prove himself worthy of the pardon, and exercise the utmost in restraint" now that he is back in West Germany. Bunte said in its Friday edition.

Kremlin leader questions strikes

The Associated Press

MOSCOW — The Kremlin's No. 2 leader said Friday that officials who allowed strikes that paralyzed Armenia and the enclave of Nagorno-Karabakh should be punished.

Yegor K. Ligachev also said that any Communist Party members who engaged in strikes should be expelled from the party.

In a wide-ranging speech to party activists in the city of Gorky, Ligachev said the strikes that crippled Armenia and the predominantly Armenian region of Nagorno-Karabakh were of a "extremist, anti-Soviet character," and that Soviet society should create an atmosphere in which such protests are not tolerated.

Officials who permitted such protests should be brought to account for their inability to prevent them, he said. The strikes are totally inconsistent with membership in the party, Ligachev said.

Some of Ligachev's comments were published by the Tass news agency, and the evening TV news program "Vremya" broadcast about 15 minutes of his speech in Gorky.

Ligachev is considered more conservative than party leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev on the question of openness in Soviet society.

Strikes crippled Armenia and Nagorno-Karabakh, which is a part of the neighboring southern republic of Azerbaijan this spring and summer as Armenians demanded that control over the territory be taken from Azerbaijan and given to Armenia.

Central authorities refused to give in to the demands and warned that they would not tolerate strikes or violence. The strikes were halted late last month.

Ligachev said the strikers misunderstood the meaning of Gorbachev's effort to make Soviet society more democratic.

In Paris on Friday, an Armenian dissident who was stripped of his citizenship and banished from the Soviet Union last month said he would pay for a visit to return home.

Carlucci makes visit to Soviet military bases

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci said Friday the Soviet Union has not reduced the resources going into its military program.

Carlucci came to Turkey after a trip to the Soviet Union during which he visited several bases and saw secret military equipment.

"It is true that Soviets are more open in showing their military equipment and exercises," Carlucci told a news conference in Istanbul.

"But we see no change whatsoever in the resources that are going into the Soviet military establishment."

Since the Soviets continue to produce a large amount of weaponry, "it is important that we as the NATO allies continue to maintain our deterrent at the highest possible level," Carlucci said.

He spent one day in Ankara where he met with Premier Turgut Ozal and Defense Minister Ercan Varolhan. After a day in Istanbul, the secretary was to travel to the Aegean port city of Izmir for two days of sightseeing.

Varolhan said that after talking with Carlucci, Turkish officials concluded that "uncertainties in the relationship are a thing of the past."

He said the U.S. administration was aware that Turkey was trying to modernize its armed forces and said it was doing its best to help.

The government says that about $12 billion in U.S. aid is needed annually for the modernization projects. This year, Congress allocated Turkey $520 million in military aid.

Iranian planes inflict casualties near Iraq border

The Associated Press

NICOSIA, Cyprus — Iranian warplanes inflicted heavy casualties on enemy troops near Iraq's southwestern border Friday, and Iran hanged two more members of an outlawed rebel group, Tehran announced.

Also Friday, Chief Justice Musavi Ardabili of Iran claimed his nation's acceptance of U.N. cease-fire resolution had gained it international support and proved that Iraq was the aggressor in the 8-year-old war.

Elsewhere, an Iranian opposition radio station broadcasting from Afghanistan charged that "group after group" of political prisoners have recently been executed in Iran.

The Iranian bombers flew three separate attacks against Iraqi forces opposite the Iranian border hamlet of Chasabeh, "inflicting heavy losses and casualties," Tehran Radio said without providing details.

The geographic locators given were inside Iran, but the bombing was apparently just inside Iraq. Iran last used its warplanes July 28 in an attack aimed at expelling Iraqi troops pushed into western Iran last week and claimed to have killed or wounded 40,000 Iranian soldiers.

The Mujahadeen's military arm is known as the National Liberation Army.

Iran claimed earlier that a rebel leader was publicly hanged Thursday and another surrendered to Iranian authorities. Neither was identified.

But the NLA issued a statement in Washington denying the surrender claim.

Iranian radio also broadcast a prayer sermon in which Chief Justice Ardabili said Iran's acceptance of the cease-fire resolution made the world realize that President Saddam Hussein of Iraq "is an aggressor and criminal."

"With acceptance of the resolution by Iran," the Iranian jurist added, "we gained support on a world level."

The resolution calls for a cease-fire, withdrawal to international borders, an exchange of prisoners and talks on a final settlement.

Palestinian leaders may issue independence declaration

The Associated Press

JERUSALEM — Underground-Palestinian leaders may soon issue a "declaration of independence" designed to fill the power vacuum left by Jordan in Israeli-occupied territory, Palestinian sources said Friday.

The declaration, according to one Palestinian source, would be an effort to pave the way for local contact with Israeli authorities and circumvent Israeli opposition to dealing with the PLO in the wake of Jordan's severing of ties with the West Bank.

Jordan's King Hussein ignited debate over the future of the occupied lands with a series of measures aimed at cutting legal and administrative ties.

In the latest such move, Hussein on Thursday fired 21,200 teachers, hospital workers, agriculture officials and others with a payroll of $45 million a year.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir and other officials said Friday that for political and financial reasons, Israel would not step in to assume the role being abandoned by Hussein.

At the same time, Israeli officials made clear they would not agree to let the Palestine Liberation Organization take over the functions.

The Arab rebellion in the occupied territories broke out Dec. 8. Since then, 236 Palestinians and four Israelis have been killed.

The source said the proposed declaration implicitly recognizes Israel's right to exist and calls for a state in "only part of Palestine" — a reference to territory occupied in the 1967 Middle East war.

The underground leaders, who have directed anti-Israeli resistance with weekly communiqués, may publish the document in leaflet form in the next few weeks, the source said. He said any such move would be coordinated with the PLO.

Another Palestinian source, however, said the declaration failed to gain widespread support.

He said the draft was set aside temporarily for fear it would be rejected by hard-line and Syrian-backed PLO factions.

Journalist Daoud Kuttab was the only Palestinian to openly support the idea of a declaration, endorsing the proposal in an article.

"We can ask the rest of the world to start recognizing us and the dream will become reality without waiting for the solution to be served up to us on a silver platter at an international conference," Kuttab wrote in the Israeli Arab weekly Al-Sinara published in Nazareth.

In Amman, Jordan, a senior PLO official said Friday that Arafat soon will visit the kingdom to discuss the implications of Hussein's actions.

The official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, did not say when the visit would be. But he said a senior Palestinian delegation was expected within days to prepare for the visit.

TWIN FALLS — The first salvo of the Idaho state "A" American Legion tournament will be fired today at Frontier Field, but for some of the traditional big guns in Idaho Legion baseball, there's not a lot of ammunition to spare.

Meridian and Idaho Falls, the winners of the last two state Legion championships, will come to town with just 12 players apiece, a condition shared by host Twin Falls and at least two other teams in these five-day, double-elimination playoffs.

"Sure, it's going to have an effect,"

American Legion Baseball

says Meridian Coach Mo Brooks, who worries about what he will do once he gets past his ace, left-handers Tony Miran (13-0) and Eric Harbison (10-2). "The teams that get into Monday and Tuesday with the most pitching depth are going to have a real advantage."

Idaho Falls (29-17) will open up this morning against Coeur d'Alene (32-21) at 10 o'clock, while Meridian (37-5) will meet Moscow (28-23) at 1 p.m. Pocatello (47-14) will face Caldwell (23-28) at 5 p.m. and Twin Falls (24-19) will square off against Lewis-Clark of Lewiston (40-23) at 8 p.m.

The tournament will continue with four games Sunday, three on Monday and two on Tuesday, with the championship to be decided Wednesday at 7 p.m. The winner will represent Idaho in the Northwest Regional tournament later this month.

Brooks, like most of his counterparts with sparsely populated benches, lost key players at the end of the regular season and is nursing injuries among others, including second baseman Brad Wickham (hitting .363), who sustained a finger injury during the Western District tournament, and first baseman Don Barowsky (475), who was suffering from flu-like symptoms earlier in the week.

"You wonder whether to go with your best kids right away or save them for later in the tournament," says Brooks.

"Teams that get themselves in the loser's bracket early are at a big disadvantage in this kind of tournament," says Idaho Falls' Vince Moll, who will open with his ace right-hander Greg Ehardt (4-3) on the mound. "It's never over until you lose two games, but generally speaking the earlier you lose, the harder it is to come back."

Twin Falls Coach Mike Federico, who lost ace right-hander John Hayes to a broken hand during the Southern Region tournament, agrees.

"We figure we have to win the first game, especially with Hayes gone," he says. "If we play Pocatello in the second round we know we can beat them because we've done it before, so Lewiston is the key."

Federico will send a 16-year-old right-hander Chris Smith (3-8) to the mound against the Twins. Lewis-Clark coach Dwight Church hadn't decided upon a starter as of Friday.

Lewiston and Pocatello come into the tournament with the greatest depth, and the Rebels' long suite is pitching.

"In a tournament like this, I think our pitching depth will definitely be an advantage," says Pocatello Coach Randy Jensen, who will send right-hander Jim Hallinan (8-2) to the mound against Caldwell.

The numbers — as well as the tradition — also favor Northern Region champion Lewiston, but even Church wonders if his pitching will hold up.

"We have 12 position players and nine of them are hitting .300, but I don't know about our pitching," he says.

Twin Falls is hoping to cash in on Shane Quesnell's batting ability at state tourney

Quesnell, Cowboy kids hope to spring a second surprise

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

TWIN FALLS — Shane Quesnell looked a little tired as he strapped on his catcher's gear the other day before practice.

"There have been a lot of games since March," said Quesnell, the 16-year-old catcher for the Twin Falls Cowboys. "But it's still fun."

Quesnell and his 11 Twin Falls teammates will open the Idaho state "A" American Legion tournament tonight against the Lewis-Clark Twins of Lewiston. It will be the Cowboys' 43rd game. Quesnell has caught a little more than half of them after catching all 28 games of the Twin Falls High School season.

"Shane is one of that group of sophomores we had this year that loves the game," said his high school coach, Bill Ingram. "Whatever sport they're playing, they love it."

"If I could coach kids like that, I'd coach forever," said Cowboys Coach Mike Federico of the 16-year-olds on his ballclub led by Quesnell, second baseman Boomer Walker, first baseman Bobby Jenco and shortstop Matt Rasmussen. They come to every game ready to play. They come to every practice ready to play.

"We've been playing together since tee-ball," said Quesnell. "I think the fact that we've been together so long has made us a better team."

Quesnell, who like Walker, Jenco and Rasmussen played for the Cowboys when he was 15, is the quietest of the group but in many ways its symbol. Headed into the state tournament, he is second among the active Cowboy players in batting (.283) and leads in home runs (4) after hitting 350 during the high school season, earning first-team all-Gem State Conference honors at catcher in the process.

"Shane's a big kid for 16 and he looks intimidating, but his personality's just the opposite," said Federico. "Until you try to run over him at the plate."

"He's a good defensive catcher," said Ingram. "I think his biggest strength is that he's a quick release with the ball. He handles pitchers well and can hit the ball well. Really, I think playing Legion ball last summer made a lot of difference. It gave him an edge this spring."

"He plants his feet the right way, but he's still having problems. A 16-year-old catcher is going to have," said Federico. "He needs to improve his arm strength and consistency. The emergence of John Horner as a catcher this summer allowed Federico to move Quesnell to third base. But Horner left the team last week, leaving Quesnell as the Cowboys' only backup.

"Quesny did a good job at third," said Federico. "Having him there gave us some flexibility we wouldn't have had otherwise and it let us get one more good bat in the lineup. It helped him too because it got him out from behind the dish for awhile. Catchers take a beating, and he's had his share of bumps and bruises."

Quesnell enjoyed the break, but says he still prefers to catch. "I like it because you're involved in the game with every pitch," he said. "I don't think it affects your hitting that much."

But Quesnell said his hitting has suffered because of the length of the Legion season.

"There's a big difference between playing two or three games a week and playing eight or nine games," he said. "There are a lot more at-bats and that's hurt my average. My goal is to bring my average up."

"I don't know how many big doubles he's had for us this year that were a few inches from being a home run," Federico said. "I think he's become a smarter hitter too. He's starting to lay off the bad pitches and waiting for his

Hernandez returns to drive Mets to 3-2 victory over Pirates

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Keith Hernandez, returning to New York's lineup for the first time since June 23, doubled and hit a tie-breaking, two-run homer in the seventh inning, while Ron Darling pitched the Mets to a 3-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Friday night.

The Mets beat the Pirates for the sixth time in their last eight meetings to open up a five-game lead in the National League East. New York has won four of five games against the second-place Pirates in the last eight days.

With the score tied 1-1 and one away in the seventh, Willy Backman doubled, chasing starter Bob Walk, 11-7, and bringing on left-handed reliever Dave Rucker. Hernandez, who was reactivated just before the game, hit a 3-0 pitch over the right-field wall for his sixth homer of the season. Hernandez set up the Mets' first run with a first-inning double.

Philadelphia 9, Chicago 3

CHICAGO (AP) — Mike Schmidt hit his 541st career homer to tie Rogers Hornsby for career extra-base hits and Milt Thompson went 4-for-5 with four RBI as the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the Chicago Cubs 9-3 Friday.

It was Schmidt's 1,001st career extra-base hit, tying him for eighth place among National League players. He needs three more to tie Honus Wagner.

Schmidt's 11th homer of the year and 76th against the Cubs, including 48 at Wrigley Field, sparked a four-run third inning against Greg Maddux, 15-7, who has lost three straight.

Houston 6, Los Angeles 4

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston scored four runs off Orel Hersher in the first inning, and Glenn Davis drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly to second baseman Steve Sax as the Astros beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-4 Friday night.

The victory cut the Dodgers' lead in the National League West to 2½ games over the Astros.

Davis, in the starting lineup for the first time since July 26 after recovering from a leg injury, broke a 4-4 tie in the fourth with the shallow-safely, then drove a run in the sixth-inning with a single.

Hersher had a 3-0 record against the Astros this season and had yielded only three runs on 12 hits in 26 innings until the first inning.

Atlanta 8, Giants 5

ATLANTA (AP) — Andres Thomas capped a four-run Atlanta third inning with a three-run homer Friday, leading the Braves to an 8-5 triumph over San Francisco that snapped a streak of eight losses to the Giants.

The Giants' Bret Butler hit his fourth home run on the first pitch of the game, but the Braves quickly tied the score when Ron Gandy led off their half off the first with a triple, scoring on Gerald Perry's sacrifice fly.

Montreal 3, St. Louis 1

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Dennis Martinez pitched his second complete game victory over St. Louis in a week, and Rex Hudler had three hits as the Montreal Expos defeated the Cardinals 3-1 Friday night.

The Cardinals' lone run was unearned, giving Martinez a 0.00 earned run average in 26 innings over three starts against St. Louis this season.

John Tudor, 5-5, who surrendered eight hits and all three runs over seven innings, was the loser.

Montreal, which has won 10 of its last 12, remained 6½ games behind the New York Mets in the National League East. The third-place Expos pulled to within one game of second place Pittsburgh, which lost to the Mets 3-2.

The Expos have won 13 of their last 15 games on the road, and they're 9-2 against the Cards this season.

Cincinnati 10, San Diego 7

CINCINNATI (AP) — Eric Davis hit a two-run homer in the seventh, and Herm Winningham had a three-run triple in the fifth to give the Cincinnati Reds a 10-7 see-saw victory over the San Diego Padres Friday night.

Davis' homer, his 20th, broke a 7-7 tie forged when Carmelo Martinez hit a three-run homer in the Padres' fourth inning. Keith Moreland also drove in three runs for San Diego.

Minnesota sweeps double-header from Yanks by 7-5, 11-2

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Viola became baseball's first 17-game winner and Steve Lombardozzi drove home four runs as the Minnesota Twins routed the New York Yankees to sweep a doubleheader.

In the opener, Gene Larkin's three-run homer broke a tie in the eighth inning to lead Minnesota to a 7-5 victory.

Viola, 17-4, allowed eight hits in 7 1/3 innings. He struck out six, walked one and improved to 6-8 lifetime against New York. Jann Berenguer and German Gonzalez, making his major-league debut, closed.

Kirby Puckett, Greg Gagne and Tim Laudner each got three of Minnesota's 15 hits against Lee Guetterman, 0-1, and three relievers.

In the first game, Puckett hit a double with one out in the eighth off Rick Rhoden, 7-4, and Herbek was intentionally walked. Gary Gaetti tied out on the warning track before Larkin hit his fourth home run, a drive into the third deck in right field.

Hrbek, 3-for-3 with two walks, had a two-run single in the ninth.

Fred Tolive, 3-1, gave up five hits in 7 1/3 innings.

Jeff Reardon closed for his 29th save despite allowing Claudell Washington's fifth homer, a three-run shot, in the ninth. Rhoden lost for the first time in five decisions.

Toronto 7, Kansas City 6

BALTIMORE (AP) — Greg Brock drove in two runs and reliever Juan Nieves and Dan Plesac allowed no hits in four innings as Milwaukee defeated Baltimore to earn a split in its doubleheader and snap the Orioles' season-high four-game winning streak.

In the first game, Jose Bautista pitched a six-inning and Jim Traber hit a tie-breaking single in the sixth inning.

Don August, 6-5, allowed six hits in five innings. Nieves came on in the sixth and worked three innings, striking out six. Plesac retired the side in order in the ninth to earn his 27th save.

The Brewers scored two runs against Mike Morgan, 1-6, to take a 3-1 lead in the third.

In the first game, Bautista, 6-9, walked none, struck out five and allowed no earned runs for his second complete game. Ted Higuera, 7-8, has been supported by just 10 runs in his last four starts, losing three of them.

Pete Stanicek hit his second homer in the seventh.

Texas 8, Cleveland 4

Stocks post modest losses on slow day

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices posted some modest losses in slow trading Friday, faced with evidence of continuing rapid employment growth that sent interest rates higher.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks dropped 7.47 to 2,119.13, closing out the week with a net loss of 9.60 points.

Declining issues outnumbered advances by about 6 to 3 in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed stocks, with 566 up, 546 down and 508 unchanged.

Volume on the floor of the Big Board came to 113.40 million shares, down from 157.24 million Thursday and the smallest total since a 102.64 million-share day on May 23.

Nationwide, consolidated volume in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 130.03 million shares.

Before the market opened the Labor Department reported that the unemployment rate edged up to 5.4 percent from the 14-year low of 5.3 percent it reached in June.

But the monthly statistics that Wall Street watches more closely, on nonfarm payroll employment, told a different story.

Payrolls increased 283,000 in July, and the figure for June was revised upward to show a gain of 532,000.

Along with robust economic growth, analysts said that raised the prospect of increased inflationary pressures, and gave the Federal Reserve fresh cause to consider tightening credit further.

Interest rates climbed in the credit markets after the news was reported. Prices of long-term government bonds, which move in the opposite direction from interest rates, posted losses of about $1.00 for each $1,000 in face value, putting their yields in the 9.10 percent-9.25 percent range.

Losers among the blue chips included Ford Motor, down 1/4 at 63 3/4; General Electric, down 1/4 at 41 1/4; International Business Machines, down 1/4 at 123 1/4; and American Express, down 1/4 at 28 1/4.

On the plus side, General Motors gained 1/4 to 78 1/4 and American Telephone & Telegraph 1/4 to 26 1/4.

Russ Berrie & Co. tumbled 2 1/4 to 18 1/4. The company reported second-quarter earnings of 4 cents a share, down from 7 cents in the comparable period a year ago.

Leading Japanese issues were notably weak: Honda Motor fell 1/4 to 16 1/4; Matsushita 1/4 to 21 1/4; TDK 1/4 to 7 1/4; and Kyocera 2 1/4 to 8 1/4.

Cullum Cos. rose 1/4 to 22 1/4 in the over-the-counter market. The company is the subject of a $25.50-a-share buyout proposal by a group including top executives.

As measured by Wilshire Associates, the index of more than 5,000 actively traded stocks, the market lost $7.86 billion in value.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stock dropped .48 to 158.09.

Standard & Poor's industrial index fell .09 to 211.21, and the S&P 500 composite index was down .78 to 271.16.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market lost 1.15 to 387.71. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index closed at 304.95, down .38.
